

WALDEN

Sebastian Kruger, Big Jagger, KS109
Hand-Enchanced Giclee on Canvas
41 x 27 inches, Edition of 99

There is only one man whose powers of performance can hold a roaring arena of 80,000 in the palm of his hand—Mick Jagger. Just a few months ago, Sebastian Kruger released a portrait of Keith Richards, his fastest selling work to date. Now Jagger takes the stage, posing as the larger-than-life performer he is.

The details that Kruger chooses to exaggerate convey more than a straightforward portrait ever could. A longtime friend of the Stones, Kruger has joined the band on tour and has completed several iconic portraits, depicting the band members as well-lined veterans of rock. Kruger describes his relationship with the Stones as “a great honor” and an opportunity that has “opened every door for me.”

