In Hip Hop Hound, the original Snoopy Dog dances his signature hop. A famous daydreamer, Snoopy's imagination appears on the page in full Technicolor.

The bright color stems from Everhart's time in Tahiti. "The light there is so bright, you can see more clear color," he says. "You can see through the water to the bottom of the ocean... It's like that in the image as well – these are very clear colors, and you can see through the surface into what lies underneath."

Tom Everhart's solid brushstroke pulses with music. In the surrounding space, blues and purples harmonize in low tones, the bass rhythm section. Yellow-orange dots circle like notes played on a keyboard, and red rectangles tremble around Snoopy's ears, reverberating like cymbal crashes. Every mark resonates with sheer joy.

One of Everhart's boldest, brightest lithographs, Hip Hop Hound is saturated with color and music.
